are being used by the Town Council for street improvement. Two main residential streets in the lower-Belle Ave. and Lake Ave.—and one main street in the Negro subdivision, Joe Levine Ave., are being improved.

They have been surveyed and rolled almost to grade. They will be brought to grade, rolled, receive a top coat of slag, and be sealed before the summer rains if present plans materialize. It is estimated that the digger will be received up to July 1 will be ample to pay for this work.

"But he that shall blaspheme against the Holy Ghost, hath never forgiveness, but is in danger of eternal damnation." "Because they say he hath an unclean spirit." I know there are various opinions concerning this sin, and of course the scriptures are of no private interpretation, but I believe the scripture speaks for itself. New let us notice just what Jesus is saying to the scribes and pharisees. He had been casting out devils in the name of his father who had sent him. While engaged in this good work and helping lost humanity, The ecclesiastical dignitaries of that day said, "This man is casting out devils by Beelzebub, the prince of the devils." Jesus admonished them to this end, "You can blaspheme me, you can call me a son of man, but when you speak evil of the power wherewith I cast out demons you are in danger of eternal damnation." Now, my friends, I think it would behoove us to confine our talk to that which we know and understand, less we bring the displeasure of The Almighty God upon us. These people were jealous of the power invested in Christ to do good. Being void of this power in themselves, they brought condemnations to their hearts, by trying to discredit the Authenticity of Jesus Christ. And in so doing were inviting the wrath of God on them. Just before Christ left this world to go back to his Father, he told his disciples that they would do greater things than he had done. We have been privileged to see some of those things in this day. Yet as of old, there are still Scribes and Pharisees in this land today. And I believe there are today a lot of people damning their souls with their own words of oppression. Matthew 12:37 states, "By thy words thou shalt be justified, and by thy words thou shalt be condemned." Next Week's Sermonette Will Be Submitted By Elder W. C. Hatch, West Palm Beach, Pastor Of The Seventh Day Adventist Church, Belle Glade. "I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord."—Psalms 122-1. # Univ. Of Florida Professor Deals With Calculus To Coconut Problems

Whether the problem is calculus or coconuts Dr. F. W. Kokomor, head professor of freshman mathematics at the University of Florida, finds himself playing the part of a mathematician.

Letters came from retired business men who ask for advice on a new type of ruler, or new mathematics tables they have invented; phone calls come from high school teachers who are sure their bright pupils have "traced an angle" or "squared a circle."

The professor's sleep has been interrupted at home to settle a midnight argument about a problem in a fraternity house, and sometimes he drops his text books long enough to appear on a witness stand in a case involving finance.

But Dr. Kokomor and his fellow professors do not despair. They believe that the "consultation" part of the job is as important as the "teaching." This may mean helping students with their statistics, working out of stiff calculations for business administration, or agricultural engineering, or giving advice to someone on which retirement plan is the best, mathematically.

The case of the coconuts has reached the mathematicians several times this year: Five men gathered a pile of coconuts. The first divided the pile in half, took half, with one left over. The second did the same. This happened with each, with one coconut left over each time. How many were in the original pile? "Answer Man" Kokomor says the smallest number is over 2000.

The Florida mathematics department has about 3,000 students on its rolls, with 190 class sections meeting college requirements and giving back-ground courses for such fields as physics and engineering. The staff has doubled in ten years, and the university will award its first Ph.D. degree in mathematics in June.

Parathion Dangerous If Not Handled Right

Parathion, described as one of the most effective treatments for scale insects and other varieties of insects, can be definitely dangerous to people if not handled according to directions, the State Board of Health called today.

The State Board of Health issued the warning after receiving reports of at least one death and several serious illnesses among workers which medical evidence indicated was due to careless use of parathion.

Dr. Wilson T. Sordley, State Health officer, said today that "parathion is a relatively safe spray and its use should be by all means be continued."

"But," he added, "directions for its use should always be observed and the necessary precautions taken to avoid toxic conditions which could lead to serious illness or death."

Containers of parathion are always carefully labeled with directions for its use, a distributor at Jacksonville said. "They must be followed in order to avoid toxic results," he added.

The State Board of Health already has warned every doctor, pharmacist and hospital in Florida to be on the lookout for certain symptoms of suspicious illness, and to question such patients—if they have been handling parathion or if they have been in the vicinity where the spray was being applied.

The notice which went forward to doctors warned that the symptoms of parathion exposure included unexplained headache, dizziness, nausea and occasional shortness of breath.

The notice also outlined the recommended treatment.

Parathion, it was explained, is used by citrus growers for control of purple scale, Florida red scale, cottony-cushion scale and mealybugs.

Parathion, it was emphasized, is designed primarily for use in agriculture and on ornamental plantings, and is in no sense a household insecticide, nor should it be used as such under any conditions.

Indiscriminate handling of parathion by anyone unfamiliar with the use of toxic insecticides is definitely dangerous, the State Board of Health continued.

Certificates Required On Shipments Of Host Plants Of Cane Pest

Although the European cane borer is not present in Florida, shipments from this state of susceptible plants to California must be accompanied by a state-of-origin certificate, according to Commissioner Arthur C. Brown of the State Plant Board.

A recent revision of the European cane borer quarantine promulgated by the California Department of Agriculture provides for state-of-origin certificates on such shipments even though the vegetables, flowers, or plants are produced in states known to be free of this pest, Mr. Brown said.

Plants and plant parts known to be hosts to the European cane borer and therefore requiring state-of-origin certificates if shipped to California points include: corn, bromcorn, sorghum, and Sudan grass plants and all parts of these plants; beans in the pod; beet, celery, bell peppers (fruit), eggplant, Swiss chard, and tuberous root or plants with roots; flowers or plants of aster, chrysanthemum, calendula, cosmos, hollyhock, marigold, sinola, Japanese hop, dahlia, and gladiolus (except bulbs, corms, or tubers without stems).

State-of-origin certificates may be obtained from the State Plant Board, Gainesville, Plant Board nursery inspectors in various sections of the state, or from Dr. R. V. Allison, Everglades Experiment Station, Belle Glade, Dr. George D. Runkle, Sub-Tropical Experiment Station, Homestead, or Dr. Joseph R. Beckenbach, Vegetable Crops Laboratory, Bradenton.

Pasture Season Brings Pasture Plant Diseases

At least three dozen kinds of plants are capable of poisoning farm animals, and authorities warn that livestock usually cannot distinguish safe plants from harmful ones. Arrow grass, cocklebur shoots, water hemlock, and locoweed are among the plants likely to cause illness and death. With the pasture season coming up, farmers are advised to suspect plant poisoning whenever an apparently healthy animal develops convulsions, breathes fast, and falls to the ground. At the first sign of trouble, the entire herd should be moved to another pasture or to a lot and a diagnosis obtained without delay.

Via Sweet Corn Gaining Rapidly in Importance

Florida sweet corn is rapidly becoming an important truck crop and was valued at $4,536, 000 last season, the Florida State Chamber of Commerce reported yesterday.

Virtually doubling in volume the past three seasons, production in the 1948-1949 season reached 3,588 carlots. Northern markets received 3,156 carlots of the Florida crop and the balance was consumed in the State.

This week's business review of the State Chamber's research and industrial division credits the expansion in sweet corn production to improved marketing methods and new hybrids more adaptable to Florida. Immediate and continuous cooling has been found to be essential to freshness. Shucking and packaging before shipment, a practice followed by a number of shippers, has proven desirable and is becoming more popular as its economic advantage is observed.

Last year 12,300 acres throughout Florida were planted to sweet corn. Preliminary estimates of current plantings are approximately double that acreage but it is too early to estimate the volume of the crop. Florida sweet corn is sold before condition sets in from other areas.

Field corn, for many years Florida's largest crop, at point of view of acreage (898, 000 acres in 1949) was valued at $11,678,000 last year.
